

Dear Jacquote,

My beloved niece, your uncle doesn't know how to start this letter. But firstly, please accept my apologize for not coming to your birthday party. However, your uncle already sent you birthday present. Hope you like it. No day passes by without your uncle thinking of you. You are the reason that I keep on fighting this brutal war for so long.

By now, the news of the Children of Mortis retreating to their fortress has reached you. Yours truly succeeded to shoot down 18 enemy's fighters so far, which made your uncle an ace... as usual <cough>. However, flying here, in the realm, is completely different. Your uncle was forced to crash-land due to mechanical failure twice, hence ENFOR and me did some adjustments to the "Blue Mist" here and there (especially the inertial dampener) to fit the atmospheric flight. By the way, ENFOR always whistle joyfully every time I mention your name. He sent his regards to you.

Tomorrow we will launch a major attack. This is an important mission to defeat the enemy once and for all. Although deep down I was a bit afraid, but by thinking of you (your smile and your laugh), your uncle is confident to fight against all odds and hopefully we will end the war soon.

Once this war ends, I will return to your home planet. I will make it up for you for missing your birthday and we will spend more times together like we used to do. Lastly, let us see who the fastest Skyhopper pilot is 😊

The Force will be with you ... always,

Jafits Skrumm