

Par Room Run

Garlic, Onion, fried egg and Borcatu meat. It was the perfect recipe for breakfast.

Unaware of anything, the self claiming kitchen chief turned on the hot circle to heat up the small frying pan.

He wanted to make a morning surprise for Tajga as she was finally allowed to take the slicing and piloting lessons under close eye of the Zig and Doon.

He arrived not long ago and after an exchange of a few words with Shistavanen's captain of the Voidbreakers, Archian directed himself to the main kitchen with all of his gear - unpacked and ready to make a surprise for young Shistavanen.

He started to chop down the onion and garlic.

The oil started to flick at the frying pan, releasing more heat.

Red Shistavanen pushed the button and fan above the stove started making the noise, sucking the warm air. This also hid the rising noise from the air conditioning.

The aroma of the onion and garlic spread throughout the room. Both of them, thrown at the frying pan, touched the oil which flicked and sparkled at the metal, releasing even more heat, and making more of the shhhhh sound.

The air conditioning started to fill up with scratching sound, crawling of the bodies and the metal scraping over the metal narrow passages.

Archian flicked the switch of the fan for a higher cycle, he took the bag out from his luggage, and dropped the Borcatu meat to the frying pan, which was generating more heat.

Red walked away from the stove. Opened the drawer.

The air conditioning cover exploded, and mass of the crystal bodies flooded the floor, and jumped at the hot frying, while Archian picked up a tube full of Majoran.

Archian with surprise jumped away while the crystal dagger-like limbs tried cutting and destroyed the stove, which sparkled with electricity from the damaged parts.

It cooled down in effect which made the creatures turn at Shistavanen.

Red didn't wait and exited the kitchen and ran out to the corridor. The mass was following him, and Shistavanen noticed that many doors to rooms were open. He also noticed that because of his thick fur, he became more and more hot and sweaty and that somehow was triggering monsters. He decided to get full attention, so he sped up and when passed the first door shut them. When passing next door he noticed Elecos holding a framed Skeleton Key in his hands - another one to his collection. He shut these door.

The storage doors were closed, the same as toilets, and when passing the last one, he felt the pain in his shoulder - one of the blade sharp arms of the monster spiked it through his shoulder blade.

Blood had spilled, but Archian focused on running and reaching the next opened door which belonged to Tajga's room.

Young Shistavanen was sitting backwards to the door, wearing large headphones and writing some notes. Archian shut her door with motivation.

Red's body started to fill pinning pain in his whole body, like poison spreading through. There were only three more opened doors. Zig's, Mune's and the training area with the showers facility.

When reaching Zig's doors, Archian could not notice the voice of Zuza coming out from the speaker mentioning something about underwear. From respect he shut the door, and proceeded to Mune's room.

Shistavanen's body started to slow down, and another hit landed at his other shoulder, spilling more blood on the floor.

Mune was sitting on the floor, surrounded by the weapons. They looked aware of the identities spreading at the ship, and when Archian was closing the door, they reached for a blaster. Red didn't want to risk and shut the door, and turned to the training area.

With last effort he jumped into the smaller part of it and showers in it.

Before he left the kitchen Archian luckily picked up his flame projector with cryo-ban liquid.

He turned on water and watched as the monsters started to fill up the room with hot mist rising from the floor.

Archian took the flame projector off and whole of his strength threw it into the floor, conducted with chain effect of the explosion of the freezing liquid at him and whole, full of monsters showering room.

The last thing which he saw before darkness was the blade of the creature millimeters away from his eye, slowing down alongside him in the ice.