

The Great Red Vine Snake (https://www.darkjedibrotherhood.com/item_prototypes/vine-snake) :

High above the sky of Endor lies a series of red giants lying in an almost straight line across the sky. Seen by the local Ewok tribes of the hemisphere as a sign of cunning, the Greater Red Vine Snake is seen as a mark of slyness and subterfuge. Young woks born under the sign are often (via nature or peer pressure) found as scouts and trail breakers. If a journey is begun under the sign of the Great Red Vine Snake extra precautions “must” be taken lest the Great Red Vine Snake is angered by the brashness of the young fools that seek to travel at night under his sign.

First each Ewok must don an item of dark blackness, with an under side of red hidden beneath to show the how the bright colours of the snake hide a deep darkness in the void. Then each Ewok must do the ritual of Snake Mud and slither through a patch of wet mud to further blend themselves with the scents of the forest. Finally, each Ewok of the party that is travelling must raise their arm and wiggle in the motion of the slither of a snake, to show respect to the Great Red Vine Snake before they begin their journey.