

Khyron-class Star Destroyer

Name: Transcendence

Meaning: Lying beyond the ordinary range of perception. One easily adapts Plagueis' motto of ascendance and availing, but the current dominance of our house in the Brotherhood transcends these ideas. We were weak; we were nothing. No one paid us heed or attention, and it was from those shadows that we struck. We did not merely adapt, turning weaknesses into strengths. We did not only ascend to the highest peak Plagueis has ever seen. We did not only avail against our brothers and sisters in this Dark Crusade. We transcended not only expectations but possibilities. House Plagueis is not only First House of the Brotherhood. We have come to represent a belief that the weak can become strong and that nothing is permanent. Thus, it is fitting that the greatest representation of our newfound sense of transcendence be named as such.

Crest: The current crest of House Plagueis with the two side wings curved to point down instead of inward. The crest as a whole is slightly stretched vertically to suggest our rapid ascension beyond the physical laws of the universe (think how ships, in film, stretch before entering warp speed or light speed or what have you).

Nebula-class Star Destroyer

Name: Phoenix

— Phoenix lists three times on the Star Wars wiki, but none are major starships so, in my opinion, the name is still fairly fresh and original.

Meaning: The word immediately conjures imagery of rising flames out of which emerges both old and new. The Predominant was decimated in a surprise attack by unknown forces that left death and carnage in its wake, but only fools still mistake House Plagueis for a place weighed down by its past. The Dark Crusade ends with a house reborn. So, too, shall the Predominant be reborn. Better and stronger than ever before not because it is a different ship class (it isn't) but because it is staffed and supported by the greatest warriors, scholars, and leaders of the Dark Jedi Brotherhood. Predominant II would be a vessel needlessly tied to a former incarnation. The Phoenix is a vessel for a brighter, more fearsome future.

Crest: Simple enough - the crest of House Plagueis burning, but in a fearsome way as oppose to "house burning down" way. Perhaps instead of the crest itself burning, an emblem of flame could have the house logo superimposed. Another option would be to superimpose the Transcendence crest onto the flame, owing to the stretched crest with out turned wings looking rather bird-like.
