

Uji carries a single coin from his homeworld. Physical currency is rarely used throughout the Alliance. Yet for Uji this coin represents his home, what he fights for, the stability, and peace of planets throughout the Galaxy. He has never failed to carry it with him, day in and day out since leaving as a child. Throughout the years he has tried to remember who gave him the coin and has more than once wondered if it was one of his parents. The years that have passed through cloud his memory and he doesn't remember much before leaving to train as a Jedi.