

Character Name: Keja Tulok
Species: Human
Path: Light Side
Order: Guardian
Discipline: Juggernaut
Rank: Padawan

Physical Description: Keja is young and strong. He has wide shoulders and legs which are toned from hours of hard laborious exercise. He has calluses on his hands, and a scar on his left cheek from an accident when he was a small boy. He can be intimidating with his tall and muscled body, but his face is very open. His face is one akin with a jolly old man. He has a strong jawline and brow, and high cheek bones. His smile is very contagious and his sense of humour often lights up a room. Despite his large frame, he is quite good at disappearing in a crowd or even in a large room.

Preferred Weapons: Keja has a preference for a blaster, as he trained with one for much of his youth. However, he has taken a liking in the lightsaber, so he tries his best to improve with that. He is also moderately trained in martial arts.

Aspects: Circuit-minded
I can fix that
Easy Going 'til the fight starts
Straight Shooter
Hokey religions and Ancient weapons
Dirty Fighter

Skills: Skilled at Blasters
Mildly skilled at lightsabers
Can pilot small space craft
Bladed Weapons
Perception
Intimidation
Slicing
Manipulation
Mechanic
Subterfuge

Force Powers:
Healing
Mind Trick
Concealment
Blackness
Amplification

Suppression

Specialisations: Primary Martial Art: Echani

Secondary Martial Art: Shock Boxing

Languages: Basic

Feats: Lightning Reflexes

Jury rig

The system is down

Character Background:

Keja grew up in a remote town on the world of Corellia. The town was surrounded by lush forest and the nearest city was Bela Vistal. Corellia's prowess lay with ships, but Keja did not feel the same way about them. As a matter of tradition, he took courses in piloting, but he was often disinterested. He was put under a strict training regimen, so that he would be able to join the New Republic's Navy. While he had somewhat of a talent of flying fighter aircraft, his passion lay in hunting. Throughout his childhood, he would go out hunting with his father. This honed Keja's aim and determination.

On one of these hunting trips through the forest, when Keja was 16, the predator that they were hunting eluded them. It later attacked them when they were setting up camp. It fatally wounded his father, but Keja managed to get a few key shots in. This allowed Keja to pick up a large branch and knock the creature unconscious. Seeing his father laying on the floor, covered in blood, he killed the beast in cold blood, with two clinically accurate shots to the head.

His father died a few hours later from severe internal bleeding. Keja blamed himself and stowed away on a ship heading to Coruscant. On this voyage, the ship was ambushed and the crew, including Keja, were abducted by the pirates.

Keja was made to mine cortosis from a thin vein in an asteroid. They were kept under strict guard, with little chance of escape. Keja did notice some points during the day when someone could slip between their fingers. He started to formulate an elaborate plan to escape. His plan worked, but he only just escaped. Alarms were ringing and the guards were being especially cruel. Keja managed to escape a few seconds before the blast doors closed. In a stolen freighter, he was also pursued by fighters, but was able to outrun them.

The freighter had little fuel in it, so he exited hyperspace quickly. Thankfully, he was able to make it to a world that was inhabitable. It wasn't in any of the ancient maps on board the freighter. He spotted a settlement on the surface, and landed nearby. The planet he had found was Harakoa, also known as New Tython. Whilst searching for the inhabitants of the settlement, he was found by one of the Jedi of House Odan-Urr. He was found to be force-sensitive, and has commenced training. He has progressed well and acts as a benefit to the Jedi. He has participated in a few covert missions and has proved to be invaluable because of his strength in mechanics and slicing. Also, his stealth capabilities are improving every day. He prefers to work in a team, but will participate in solo missions if he must.