

Artifact Name: Seal of Arkos-Rar

Assumed Location: Korriban

Type: Tomb Key

Artifact's Estimated Age: Approximately 2,000 years old

Danger level: 3

Physical Description: A metal disk with a diameter of exactly 18 centimeters it appears to be made of a bronze or copper like material though it is much harder than either material. Carved into one side is a stylised image of a man assumed to be Arkos-Rar while on the reverse is a series of Sith symbols that when translated read "The key to power is in your hands".

Description of Ability: The Seal has no power within itself however stories say that before his death at the hands of his apprentice Arkos-Mar discovered an immense source of dark side power. Legend has it that all of his research, including the location of this power source, are currently locked within a hidden laboratory somewhere on the Sith homeworld of Korriban and that the seal will not only reveal the location of the laboratory but also grant the one who possesses it the ability to enter.