

Holo-Star Name: Quantum Sin

Physical Description:

Quantum is physically fit for a Givin, and had cosmetic surgery to give his toned, athletic body more of a human look. At about 6' 190lbs, he keeps to a strict diet and workout regimen to keep his body in peak form. His skeletal features are not the most attractive to most species, but his body has gone through surgery to resemble a more human anatomy.

(A brief) Backstory:

Even as an adolescent youth, Quantum knew he was different. He started to see that his gift for numbers and mathematics could be put towards other uses. Uses that fit more in-line with his personal tastes for both men and woman that took a more perverse pleasure from numbers.

Like most Givin, Quantum grew up in a society where numbers were simply a part of life. Intellect was valued as the most important attribute one could possess, and most interpersonal relationships revolved around challenging others with math. It was easy for him to experiment with his newfound kinks, and he soon had client lining up to spend time with him.

Quantum's cerebral approach to intercourse extended to both men, women, and transgender members of all kinds of species. Wookie, Gungan, Trandosian, you name it. Everyone seemed to want to be intellectually tickled and teased. He became famous and well known enough that he was pictured up by Brashers Entertainment, one of the leading HoloVision companies where he quickly rose to stardom.

Quantum is most known for his movies: "Imaginary Number Boner", "Talk Geeky To My Nether-regions", "Warm Givin Pie," and "Quadratic Cunnunlungings".