

"So you're the weapon to end it all?" Rulvak spoke aloud as if waiting for the lightsaber to respond. He held it out in front of him and closed his eyes as he carefully attuned his senses to focus on the sound of the ignition of the saber. Like many others, he thought to himself, but the Sephi's thoughts quickly changed when he opened his eyes.

"A beacon of hope for those of us daring to challenge the insane Grand Master." Uji spoke, noticing the look upon his former second-in-command aboard the Nighthawk. "Its name? Light of Arcona."

"An appropriate name for such times, and the task it has been given." Rulvak responded as he deactivated the lightsaber and handed it back to its rightful owner.