

Selen Orbit
AGV Nighthawk
A few hours after assignment

“Captain Qurroc, we are receiving communications from the Citadel.” the telecommunications officer relayed following a short chime from his console.

Not giving us much time to work here... “Put her through.”

“Rulvie! What have you and your team found?” An overly excited and giddy Atyiru inquired as soon as she came through the holonet.

Slightly irritated at being called Rulvie, the Sephi responded, “unfortunately, we have not made much progress at all. All the information we have come up with just confirms that Wuntila Arconae did kill Telona Murrage, and that Val Cole was present at the time. We are still working on details of the incident, and following leads that seem to trail back to the Iron Throne, but it is too soon for us to conclude that it was indeed the Iron Throne’s doing.” Rulvak could see that she was displeased that the answer yielded no new information. “If I may, what do we plan on doing with Wuntila?”

The Consul sat still, her hands pressed together at the fingertips. She was clearly lost in thought, but after a second she had finally registered his question. “I cannot disclose any further information on his status at this time, Rulvak. You will know more when we make a decision, until then, keep up the good work!”

“Yes ma’am.” He quickly replied before the comms faded. I really hope this allegiance between the clan holds.