

CLASSIFIED

RADO THEON

Colonel, Order of the Loyalist

Field Medic, Kiffar Male, Left Handed

Height: 1.95m / 6'4"ft. , Weight: 83.5kgs / 184lbs, Age: 52 years old

Physical Description

Rado is above average height for a Kiffar, but unlike many of his kind, he is not overly muscular. His black and blood red hair flow freely behind his head, but remains out of his face. Like many Kiffar, he has red facial tattoos covering his face, contrasting against his deep green eyes. He has a fair complexion that tends to burn when exposed to direct sunlight for very long.

Loadout Weapons

- * Hypo Syringe
- * Antidote Kit
- * Medpac
- * Synthflesh Dispenser

General Aspects

Alternative Methods

Rado's skills as a medic are not just limited to holo-books and lectures. He has read up and practiced a handful of experimental treatments while inventing a few home remedies of his own. This allows Rado to work outside the box in less than ideal situations, and can lead to him solving mysteries other trained medics might struggle with. This, of course, comes with its own string of failures, as nothing is ever perfect. That, and some of the more established professionals in the field often doubt or question Rado's alternative practices. He typically brushes them off in favor of doing everything he can to help a patient, but does quietly seek recognition for accomplishments as a healer.

Chief of Surgery

Rado has been through the wringers when it comes to medicine. He graduated top of his class from the most esteemed medical program in the Galaxy, and began travelling the Galaxy to conduct medical research. His colleagues hold him in high regards, and he often finds himself advising many of the Galaxy's finest surgeons on the latest techniques.

Personality Aspects

Cowardly Lion

Rado doesn't like conflict; so he tries to avoid it whenever possible, both in terms of combat, and interpersonal relations.

The Finer Things in Life

Rado would much rather be behind a hand of good sabacc cards or a rare vintage of aged liquor than with his blasters or ship. More often than not, he will spend nights at high-end establishments gambling, drinking and "socializing". Rado can survive without the finer things, but he sure would rather not. This preference follows him onto the job, so it is not uncommon for Rado to insult a client or potential partner by commenting on their choice of beverage or recreation.

Combat Aspects
Nervous Nellie Rado can count on one hand the number of times he has fired a blaster. He feels extremely uncomfortable in holding any type of weapon, in fear that he would do irreparable harm to himself. He will try to beg and plead his way into a nice laboratory, far from the front lines. In the event that he is called upon to make a battlefield appearance, Rado needs to medicate himself in order to stop the jitters from preventing him from performing his job.		Doc! Despite his hesitation to enter the battlefield, Rado will take extraordinary measures to make sure his allies are well taken care of. When he is called for assistance, Rado will jump to action and do whatever it takes to save a life. Sometimes, this means he is oblivious to his surroundings, which often times puts him in more danger than he would like to be in.

Notes/Extra:

Rado Theon is listed as a field medic, but prefers to stay in the safe confines of a medical bay. He spent years treating the casualties of the meaningless wars of the Dark Jedi Brotherhood. While he stays true to his hippocratic oath, he also understands that by treating the soldiers of the Collection, this could possibly mean the end of decades of destruction.

Rado was specifically approached by Rath Oligard to be his own personal physician, but later was convinced to serve in The Liberation Front by Oligard.

Affectionately known as "Radio" to his friends, Rado often quickly introduces himself as Doctor Theon in order to head off any improprieties.
