

STARBNB

Rustic & Secluded Cabins, Beachfront Access

THE SPACE:

Enjoy a nice relaxing vacation in these rustic studio cabins that line the beautiful coastline of the secluded Ach-To. Escape the harshness of the First Order, and the bureaucracy of the New Republic and bathe in the luxuriousness that this space offers. Each unit includes a wooden bed that takes you one step closer to becoming one with the Force each night. Guests are afforded all you can drink mint colored milk, provided fresh by the local Thala-siren. Housekeeping staff is on call all day and night to satisfy your every need.

The owner of this establishment should be tortured and hung from a Star Destroyer. When the host says “secluded” they mean that it is in the middle of the Unknown Regions, literally thousands of parsecs away from any sort of civilization. The huts were barely large enough to fit two people inside, and one was even missing a door! It is clearly obvious that the host also does not understand what a beach is. I expected a sanded beach area to relax on, instead I found myself setting up my chair on a rocky cliff surrounded by these stupid little birds. The housekeepers seemed to be annoyed at the smallest requests. In the middle of my stay, some girl and her ugly Wookiee friend showed up and began destroying rock formations that existed for thousands of years, without any type of security jumping in to stop her. I would never recommend this space to a friend, or an enemy.
