

The puppeteer that hides behind his lackies is growing old and delirious as his hair turns from brown to grey. So too does his grasp on the reality of the political status with in our administration. How can we allow this man to sit in his office and pretend nothing is wrong when the fires are engulfing the very throne he pretends to regulate?

I bring to you brothers and sisters of the Brotherhood, we need a newer younger take at the side of the Grand Master. If we even need this position, it's an artifact of the past that only serves as the Grand Masters play thing. Like a chew toy that has absolved its use and now remains a shredded remnant of its former glory with the squeaker removed.

If you believe that the Master at Arms has brought nothing more than ruin and red tape to the brotherhood. You must submit to the Grand Master that he be relieved of his duties once and for all. Some of the most brutal conflicts were started by the very Master that claims to be. Even when it was unnecessary all for the sake of a 'shiny'.

It's time to let the Panda go into his hibernation and let the brotherhood thrive as it has once and always done before. Take the bamboo from this beasts mouth and send him on his way for he has seen the end of his ropes with how he manages the services of the Brotherhood.
