

Dear Santa,

This is Abadeer, you know, your favorite horned guy from Aliso. I've been super super good this year, I've really been trying to be better. I've only killed a few people this year, no massacres, and only when people deserved it.

This year I want the regular stuff, I need some new clothes. Socks are great as always. Wearing one outfit for most of the year makes the socks go pretty quick. I'd also love some slippers for when I'm hanging out at home off of mission. It can get a little cold on Aliso, and I'd love something comfy to keep my feet warm.

I also need a personal computer. I never realized how much I need a computer all the time, but I never got around to getting one. It would be super great if I could get one that's red and black. It would be cool to keep my aesthetic. I want to be able to play some games on it too. Arden keeps challenging me to this old game called Warships or something like that, it would be cool if my computer was good enough to be able to beat him.

I also need a new dashboard for my ship, specifically a sick music set up. I never realized how boring the space flights, especially hyperspace, really was. It would be awesome if I could get a new set up, with some crazy bass to pump up my space travel. I want to be able to rock the night!

Ok I think that's it. Thank-you Santa, and remember. If I don't get what I want this year, I'll be coming to look for you. I don't want you holding out on me again.