

Name: V'rrgl

Species: Hutt

Gender: Male

Appearance: A snot-green slug of a surprisingly lean stature, for a Hutt, with vibrant purple eyes and a dark spotty pattern running down his 'spine'. He is often seen wearing a leather vest and harness of dark brown bantha leather, containing a multitude of pockets for knick-knacks and quick-detach slots for his cart.

Personality: Greedy, slimy, overtly 'helpful' and intruding, but with a flare of showmanship that almost makes you forget you're talking to a giant space slug.

Occupation: Merchant of Smoddo's Hyperspace Cureall, a tonic most invigorating. Distilled from collected solidified Purrgil droppings, found occasionally on remote hyperspace routes (allegedly), the Tonic is a hidden gem of alternative medicine for those with ails, aches, pains or problems. It eases the breathing, clears the eyes, straightens the back and eases anxiety. It mends colds and wheezing lungs, warms the cold-hearted and soothes the choleric. (*)

He can be found touring the streets of Ol'val, with a hover trolley trailing behind him. He is often pushing his wares upon the less fortunate, or exalting the benefits of his 'natural cures' and denouncing the tyranny of Bacta.

(*) Some "accredited and certified doctors" claim this all is just a bunch of bogus and the tonic is nothing more than a mild dose of Spice blended in high-proof spirits. However, they are merely jealous pawns of Big Pharma.