

Vader's Bistro - A Review

TL;DR ABSOLUTELY AWFUL!

My experience at Vader's bistro was atrocious. First off, I had to be put on a waiting list just for the reservation. No possibility of a walk-in, no day of reservations. I waited four months on the waitlist just to make a reservation another three months down the road.

So "fine," I thought. If this place is this hard to get into then maybe it will be worth it.

When my reservation finally came I arrived early and didn't get to my cramped corner table until twenty minutes past my reservation time. Once I was seated I was given a complimentary glass of water which was fantastic for my dry throat, waiting outside in that dry heat left me parched. The only problem now was my water was full of volcanic ash.

When it came to my meal, I was even more disappointed. I ordered the Porg Parmesan which people have raved about on the holonet. When it arrived it was burnt to a crisp from being tossed in a lake of lava and it looked like pieces of it had simply fallen off. The food was tough to eat and honestly, I found their lack of garlic disturbing.

When I complained to the manager he had the gall to try and choke me.

I will never return to Vader's Bistro.

It was supposed to satiate my hunger, not make me even hungrier.

½ stars.

Posted By: ADisappointedHat