Physical Description		Loadout Weapons
Valis is a tall and lithe-bodied Umbaran. Her skin is pale white, and her eyes a steely blue/white. Her head is mostly bald, with a single long braid of black hair scaling down her to her mid back. She wears stark white robes with embroidered black and red flowers down the back.		* WESTAR-34 Blaster Pistol
General Aspects
Social Thoughts Valis, being a trained sociologist and psychologist, processes her ideas and thoughts through a social lens. She asks questions in the hopes of bettering the lives of the Principate's many social levels. Driven by the wants and needs of the people, she sometimes finds herself in contention with her fellow Triumvirate members. In the end, her logic is respected by her peers, and her faults are accepted by those close to her.		Obsessive By Nature Valis suffers from Obsessive Compulsive Disorder. She is very particular in the methods of how things are done, and her need for everything to be where she needs it to be can take precious time better devoted elsewhere. This behavioral issue has caused her to become very perceptive, often to the point of her allies annoyance. She mostly has a handle on this, allowing her to more effectively interact with those around her, but high-stress situations can make her intricacies and idiosyncrasies rise to the surface.
Personality Aspects
I Am Not A Committee Valis likes to engage in detailed discussions and think through situations carefully, often collaborating with others to seek their opinions before deciding on the best course of action. While this often ensures she is more fair and well-respected amongst her peers, sometimes others do not have time to discuss this in a committee.		High Society Familiarity While she is concerned with all peoples, Valis has always found herself most at home in the High Society life. She walks with a regal flow, and speaks clearly and concisely at all times. While jewelry doesn't appeal to her, high-end fabrics are a vice she struggles to overcome.
Combat Aspects
Keeping My Distance Valis vastly prefers ranged combat, taking every opportunity to use skills to disengage from melee and instead fight at range, so much so that she has become competent at staying out of melee in the first place.		He's No Good To Me Dead Valis doesn't like to kill people; instead, she chooses to injure her opponent until that person is unable to fight back or is otherwise incapacitated.
