

ACC Venue

Thuvis Imperial Shipyard Abandoned Drydock #3

In geosynchronous orbit around the Lyra 3K-a star lies the Thuvis Imperial Shipyard. Once a bastion of Imperial Naval might, this near-derelict station is a shadow of its former glory. Dark, cold, and unforgiving, this station contains multiple abandoned naval docks where Imperial ships would re-arm, refuel, and resupply before continuing their campaign against the enemies of the galactic empire.

Located on the “dark side” of the station is Drydock #3. This dock still houses two derelict cruisers and contains a maintenance bay for TIE Starfighters. Cockpits and panels are suspended from abandoned cranes throughout the dock. Racks of concussion missiles and proton torpedoes are scattered throughout the facility, most still containing active warheads. The former refueling station holds at least fifteen massive tibanna gas tanks along the far side of the dock.

There is no atmosphere or shielding on this portion of the station, so any soul brave enough to land here is required to wear armor containing an internal life support system. This side of the station is in a perpetual twilight due to its geosynchronous orbit around the sun.

[Venue Note: It is assumed both members are wearing the proper gear to ensure no vacuum death related issues occur, even if not listed in the loadout. All other ACC rules and guidelines apply.]