After the conflict between the native Meraxis Empire and the Scholae Empire has come to a head recently, the Scholaeans have apparently gained the upper hand against Adoniram. Warships loyal to the new Empress Shadow Nighthunter blockade the skies over Seguk, while the Meraxian nation is experiencing a coup. President Skylar Seki had the following to say in today's press conference:

"We are concerned for the wellbeing of the Meraxian civilians, but at the same time, Empress Nighthunter has allowed relief efforts to enter Seguk without undue harassment. The Scholae Empire has been willing to cooperate with us in the past, and although our values and customs vary, my cabinet and I are cautiously hopeful for a quick resolution of the conflict, and a new era of peace."

The Daily News' journalists have so far had no luck in gaining permission to enter Meraxis.

Nationwide Address from Queen Meihui to her subjects, Nayama Dynasty

"Esteemed citizens, soldiers, lords and ladies, all those who make Nayama great, a day of celebration is near. The blight upon Seraph which has tainted it for more than a century, the accursed Meraxis Empire, stands at the edge of ruin. The conquerors from beyond Caperion are delivering the final blows in these hours. Some of you may ask if they are not just another devil taking Adoniram's place. Your concern is wise advice. We will maintain our vigilance. But I ask you to take a moment to celebrate our deliverance from the scourge Adoniram, and remember that his own people suffered under him too. May the future bring peace and enlightenment to all of us. Good night."

With the expected end of the hostilities between Meraxis and Scholae, the profitability of large-scale military supplies is likely to sink. Civilian-grade firearms have a decent probability to experience a comeback with the demise of the repressive regime, medical supplies and farming equipment are nearly guaranteed to soar. Construction should pick up in the midterm while luxury goods in more than miniscule quantities are a bad bet in the foreseeable future.

Press Statement by Master Troycal Berkur, The Republic of the Force

"It is with great concern that I see the Force-users of the Scholae Empire descend upon Meraxis with hostile intent. Both sides have repeatedly pushed each other into further escalation. From our own experience, we know the destructive power of a group of sensitives. I pray for Scholae's Force disciples, that they may recognize the danger of their ways and reconsider. I wish them all the best and balance. May the Force be with you all."
