

Name: Gaderffii Prime

Physical / Technical Description: The Gaderffii Prime is constructed out of very strong durasteel. The handle was quenched in the sacred waters of Tatooine and has a darker color than the blade which was quenched in cool cave sands. There are 3 blades on the strait end. The traang (bent club end) has a large Krayt Dragon pearl for bludgeoning and a tip protruding out that is usually coated in poisons.

History: The Gaderffii Prime was constructed in a time when the inhabitants of Tatooine started seeking out and eliminating tribes of Tusken Raiders. The owner was determined by a multi tribe tournament with the winner being crowned at Tusken Prime and tasked with leading the Tusken people in a battle to regain the fear of the people and their own safety from further conflicts. When there are no major issues the Gaderffii Prime is buried within a krayt dragon nesting site. It is only called upon when the larger portion of the people need a leader to rally behind.