

{ I've chosen a Haiku as my poetic form }

DESCRIPTION:

Artifact J21112 is a medium sized cylinder that fits snugly in the palm of the hand. It is meant to be pulled apart at both ends, and is roughly eight inches in diameter. It is charcoal grey in color, with an inscription around the edge of both sides of the device. The inscription appears to be in Ancient Sith. I've attached the translation below. The inside of the artifact appears to be felted a dark ruby red, with a metal circular inlay in the center of the top of both sides. This appears to have been where a magnetized apparatus could keep valuable information boobytrapped in case the device was opened the incorrect way. There was no information inside of the device when we obtained it, but it is possible that the Collective Agent may have eaten what was inside. Xray of the corpse is suggested.

*A dark presence
Swallows your entire mind
Like the void of space*

*Long, slender hands
Reaching out towards your throat
Causing you to choke.*

*Scratching in your mind
Bringing your worst fears to life
Trapping you in place*

*The Sith are ancient
The Sith will always survive
The Sith will endure.*
