"Capture the Storm is our mission." Elyon de Neverse repeated in her mind before her and the strike team would be dropped on board CC- 7700 frigate, known as Storm.

After the team was dropped aboard the Storm, everyone immediately set to work. According to the order, the team split into two groups. The first, under the command of Aurora Ta'var, they have the task of taking control of the bridge. And a second group led by Elyon is to take control of the engine room.

Both groups use a different strategy. Aura and her group will take more directly and quietly to way. Elyon and her group entered the service corridor that opened directly into the engine room. The service corridor is full of pipes of various sizes which go in different directions. So they have to either cross them or crouch under them. That's why the journey to the engine room seemed so long to Elyon.

Meanwhile Aura and her group slowly moved forward. On board was left only the most necessary crew for the operation of the ship. Everyone who was seen on their way was pacified and imprisoned.

Eventually, both groups faced their destination. Aura looked around the corner at the armored door to the bridge. And Elyon stood in the gallery above the engine room.

"Now, we will wait for a signal and then we will go down." Elyon said to her team and looked down. Aura and her team at the same time move to a ready position by both sides of the armored door.

"This must be quick and quiet." Aura said to her team. They all nodded for agreement. At that moment Aura sent a signal to Elyon. Her comlink beeps two times. Elyon sent the signal back to confirm that they are ready.

"At three." Elyon whispered and climbed the railings of the gallery and prepared to jump. The team followed her. "One ... two ... three." Elyon whispered when she took off her lightsaber from her belt and jumped down.

At that moment, Aura unbuckled her lightsaber from her belt and activated it. The blue blade lit like a torch. Aura then opened the door and ran on the bridge.The action inside took place quickly and quietly. Resistance was useless. The attacking team was like a tidal wave and swept away everything that stood in its way. After this attack, the bridge was under their control. Now it remains to take control of the engine room.

Elyon landed on the engine room floor and lit her blue blade, which blazed like the blue glow of stars. Here, too, everything went quickly. Elyon and her team pacified all personnel and stood at the consoles.

"Check all the corridors so no one can escape." Elyon ordered when she turned off her lightsaber and checked all the monitors.

After a while, all who ran to carry out Elyon's order returned and brought in five members of the ship's crew.

"There's no one in the corridors anymore." Announced their commander Elyon.

"Thank you, Commander." Elyon replied, then activated her comlink.

"Aura, the engine room is under our control." Elyon announced their status.

"I understand, let the people in the engine room take care of the ship's operation, and with the rest of the team come at the command bridge." Aura ordered them.

" Yes, master Aura. You heard her. Get to work. Rest of you will go with me." Elyon said to them and ran out of the engine room with them.

Before they arrive at the bridge Aura looks at the inventory.

"We are here. So, what will we do next?" Elyon asked Aura after they arrived at the bridge.

"We must search every corner, box and sockets. Commodore Arcturus is planning something and we must find what. Elyon and I will look to his office and here but meanwhile the rest of you go to search the rest of the ships." Aura said to them and she seemed determined.

"Yes, madam." The commanders of both teams answered and ran out of the room.

"Elyon, you should search in the ship's data banks and try to find anything that can help us." Aura said when she turned to Elyon.

"Yes, master Aura." Elyon answered and then she sat on the console. And Aura went to Commodore Arcturus's office and searched there.

Everyone on the ship did his work thoroughly. Elyon searched all data banks and downloaded it to her datapad. Then she goes to help Aura to search the office.

"Did you find something??" Aura asked Elyon when she came to the room.

"There are many coded files. I downloaded them to datapad but many of those files have Imperial style coding. And also I found a contract about hiring four bounty hunters. " Elyon answered and looked around.

"Interesting. Do you feel that?" Aura asked and searched before one wall.

"Yes, I do." Elyon said and walked forward to Aura. The two are trying to find a way to get through the wall. After a few minutes they succeeded and found a secret shelfs with many objects. They can see several Sith's holocrons and datapads. Also lays in a shelf several lightsabers.

"Have you seen them before?" Elyon asked when they looked in.

'I am not sure and you?" Aura asked Elyon.

"These two yes." Elyon and pointed at them. "This belongs to Master Obi-wan Kenobi. And this belongs to my former master. I know it very well." Elyon said and tooks lightsaber of her former master to hands.

"It seems Commodore Arcturus is collecting lightsabers." Aura said and looked at his collection.

"I believe that with these datapads we will find much interesting information." Elyon said and when she looked to shelfs. Then she put the lightsaber of her former master on her belt.

"We must take everything from here." Aura said when turned away and went back to the bridge.

"Yes, master Aura." Elyon answers and puts all the objects in the prepared backpack. Then she followed Aura to the bridge. Then arrived at the bridge with the rest of the team.

"We didn't find anything special." The leader of both teams filed a report to Aura.

"Good work." Aura answered.

"Mission is complete. Set up a course to the Arx system." Aura said and looked through the window.
