

A Venue To Die For
Darcy Avarik (#307)

Dandoran: Nevo Race Track

Running for the entire length of the Qotho Peninsula, the Nevo Race Track begins and ends with death. Daily swoop, animal and pod races grace the track with their spectacle, but this is also the site of many creative executions, comprising anything that the twisted Py'zah the Hutt can think of.

Every kilometer of the track is filmed and streamed by camera droids and sensors, feeding the appetites of spectators who crowd the viewing stands and watch the games on the central hub's megaton vidscreens.

Carving its way through cliff sides, deep ravines and an expansive forest, the Race Track is a maze of changing terrain, featuring sharp turns and natural obstacles. Circling a central hub full of food, retail and gambling, the course is long and filled with hazards. Rigged traps and the occasional hired goon squad add further excitement and unpredictability to whatever challenge awaits you; after all, the quality of the show is what matters in this long, harrowing race.