

Dandoran: Treetop Forest Arena

This particular arena is located within the Qotho Peninsula of Dandoran. Residing in the northern forest, just on the outskirts of the popular Nevo track. The arena starts on a stone round platform elevated a couple hundred feet from the ground. Obstacles are suspended by only old rope, as you follow the obstacles only grow higher and higher into the tall trees.

This arena/obstacle was built to test those that dared too. Rather it was for practice or to settle a disagreement. There have been many times that those that failed did not survive, rather if it was failing an obstacle or falling into the mouth of a Rancor below. Two opponents would start at the one platform and ultimately it was a race to the other side. Not only did you have to fight with your opponent you also had to surpass the obstacles that lay ahead.

In total there were 3 obstacles and 2 platforms. Each one testing balance and concentration while dodging opponent attacks. First obstacle obtains a long line of tree logs suspended by only rope on each end horizontally into two lanes next to each other leading to the first platform. Second obstacle is one rope bridge, with just old creaky boards spaced out to walk across, no sides to grab a hold of to reach the second platform. The third and final obstacle is a bunch of short and medium sized logs each suspended separately by a long rope. Swinging freely, making it extremely difficult to cross. If the opponents reach the final platform in a tie they must fight until one is defeated by giving in or to death.
