

Czarnian took another step forward, indicating that they were now in Ewok territory. As far as he could see, the area was covered in trees. Thran and Raleien were also taking steps to the side of him. Rayne was up in the trees, keeping an eye on the ones who were on the ground. She jumped from one tree to the next, relying on the force to assist her to acquire enough air to complete the lengthy jump.

Kamjin had assigned them all to a basic task. It was only a matter of getting to the Axios, the flagship where Teebu was stationed.

"Grrrrrrrr" Reiden stomach let out an angry sound.

"Reiden, don't worry; I believe we're getting closer. Once we've cooked that teddy bear, you can have first dibs."

Reiden gave a wicked grin.

Xanthia was with them as well, strolling alongside Reiden. Czarnian had just realized she was carrying a flame thrower.

"Xanthia, What the hell! I told you to keep the flame thrower on board "Czarnian screamed angrily.

"I need something to burn their little Ewok pants," Xanthia retorted angrily.

"Xanthia, we've talked about this a lot. Ewoks don't wear pants because their skin is covered in fur "Czarnian remarked

"Whatever it is, it must be removed!"

Czarnian shook it aside, deciding that it wasn't worth getting in the way of Xanthia's never-ending quest to burn all the pants. When they grabbed Teebu and roasted him for dinner, the flame thrower might come in useful.

Finally, the group arrived at the ship. It was significantly larger than they had anticipated. At the entrance, two Ewoks kept watch.

Thran and Rayne dropped down behind them and discreetly took them down before Czarnian could finish his thought. They tossed their lifeless bodies to the side, hidden from view.

The remainder of them were given the indication by Thran that the premise was clear.

The others continued walking past the Ewoks who laid motionless.

Czarnian heard a crackling and chomping sound behind him, he didn't have to turn around to realize it was the sound of the flame-thrower hitting the Ewoks' fur, as well as Reiden biting into one of the Ewoks' flesh.

Czarnian was also hungry, but he was focused on completing the assignment and locating Teebu.

Thran led them all into the main quarters, where Teebu was located, after some wandering. Teebu was fast asleep in a bathtub full of water. He was wearing a towel over his face. He was too relaxed and blinded by the towel to see any of them approaching the tub.

They all gathered around Teebu, who was reclined in the porcelain tub. The water had reached his tiny hairy chest.

The entire gang was looking at each other at the time, knowing exactly what was about to happen.

"Well, Boys," Rayne said, "Looks like Boiled Ewok is back on the menu."

Teebu was shocked and awoken by the sound of her voice. The towel slid down his cheeks.

But it was too late, and there was nothing he could do about it.

Xanthia had already set the flame thrower to maximum power and was firing the porcelain tub with it. With Teebu inside, the water in the tub rose to a rapid boil.

Before succumbing to the heated water, he let out a loud shout.

Czarnian remarked, "Well, this was really simple."

"It always is," Thran said.

The group all laughed and enjoyed their dinner as one big happy family.