It is with great joy that I report that we have finished our mission well ahead of the established timetable. A great thanks must be given to [REDACTED] for the use of the specialized tracker holocam droids and the micro beacon spy droids. They have greatly aided us in our task. As you are well aware, we were sent to Ragnath to gather information on as many of the beings in Scholae Palatinae as possible. This was done at the behest of [REDACTED].

When we first arrived on Ragnath, the information gathering process began as a long, tedious and time-consuming process. Our hopeful estimation was 35%-55% of the profile dossiers completed. And then, tragedy struck Scholae Palatinae. And in our view, not every tragedy is a loss, as you are well aware. The pride of Scholae Palatinae, the Adoniram Tower was destroyed in a sneak attack by remnants from the Republic of the Force. And in its loss, our operatives moved in, masquerading as cleanup and recovery teams, they were bequeathed a great gift. A cornucopia of information about the various members of the Scholae Clan from the damaged computer systems. All other profiles of the other members were sent ahead and processed by [REDACTED]. This last file took some time to finish as SP-15718 was a most elusive target.

Physical Profile Assessment: Subject SP-15718 has proved to be most elusive when it comes to allowing anything to be revealed about himself. Due to an erroneous assumption by a novice informant, SP-15718 was presumed to be either Chiss or Twi'lek. But with the influx of more reliable information coming into our grasp, this view has since been discounted. And with the gathering of new information, and if this information proves to be true, SP-15718 is now believed to be of a multi-species background. Possibly a hybrid of Human, Zeltron, Echanni, and Juhanni heritage. While an actual physical picture of SP-15718 has not yet been ascertained, a holovid of a family vacation on a beach, possibly Corellia, was taken from SP-15718's parent's home. In the holovid, it shows three people in particular, two adults and one child. All of whom, seem to be of mixed species heritage. At one point in the holovid; the adult female in an indignant tone, yells out the name Xendar. The Holovid, and other pertinent information was sent to ██████████ for review and authentication.

Psychological Profile Assessment: SP-15718 is something of a paradox. In combat, he displays a brutally pragmatic Sith-like efficiency for fighting, while also exhibiting the high moral code of the Jedi; to the point of incapacitating and apprehending of several targets instead of eliminating them. Or nearly getting killed to save the life of a young girl, whom he later adopted. While it seems that SP-15718 is a highly disciplined individual, he is not a soldier, nor does he conform to the rules of military life. SP-15718 is known to be something of a maverick, especially when it comes to the parameters of his mission objectives. It should be noted from firsthand accounts and combat mission reports, that SP-15718 seems to display an unwavering loyalty to those who he has deemed to have earned it. And willing to go to great lengths to ensure their safety, even at the cost of the mission or his own life. This is especially true in the case of one Captain Oriyanna Rathelin, now the commander of the 1st Scholae Palatinae Advanced Response Team. She was paired with SP-15718 for the Veradun and Eleena experiment. Which was one of three experimental projects to create stronger two-being fighting teams. With the Veradun and Eleena project being the pairing of a strong male force user with a female special operation soldier. Apparently, the project was a success, as the two of them worked so well together that they are set to be married in the near future.

Combat Evaluation Assessment: From the information gleaned from combat reports, after action statements, weapons requisition forms, and eyewitnesses. SP-15718 seems to prefer close quarter to hand-to-hand combat weaponry, along with his use of various styles of martial arts and lightsaber forms. This is evidenced by his standard mission weapons choice, which includes: shurikens, throwing knives, vibroblades, vibro-talons, vibroclaws and lightsabers. It should be noted that SP-15718 is quite brutally proficient in this style of combat. Whereas, his ranged combat abilities are utterly appalling.

SP-15718 also seems to excel in unorthodox combat missions, including: ambushes, snatch and grabs, infiltration, assassination, and primitive forms of psychological warfare; his Force power preferences reflect this as well. As he is inclined to use the following Force powers in tandem with his weapons loadout and martial arts styles: Suppression, Force Lighting, Terror, Concealment, Mind Trick, Dominate Mind, and Force Cloak.

While SP-15718 is not the most battle hardened, brilliant, or even one of the best warriors that Clan Scholae Palatinae has at their defense. He has seen his fair share of combat, some of the more notable engagements include: The Defense of the Nesolat Station, The Defense of Arx, The quelling of an uprising on the moon Ulress, The Invasion of the Republic of the Force, a hidden war with Clan Taldryan and a rescue mission of the former Empress of his clan.

Overall Assessment: SP-15718 is a well versed, experienced, unpredictable, and unorthodox fighter. As such, he should be considered an asset for Clan Scholae Palantinae. But on the detriment side, He should be considered a liability to them as well. While his loyalty to Scholae Palatinae is almost unwavering, his loyalty to his parents, his adopted daughter and his fiancée is even greater, and he will go to great lengths to ensure their safety.

As stated previously, SP-15718 is a maverick and is willing to push the mission parameters almost to the breaking point. It has been shown, that in multiple engagements, SP-15718 was willing to defy orders from the leaders of his clan in order to complete his mission objectives the way he thought best. According to holocam footage taken from security cams, SP-15718 was willing to defy Kamjin Lap'lamiz, who became the new emperor of Scholae Palatinae, if it was proven that Kamjin Lap'lamiz was trying to usurp power from Shadow Nighthunter. In another set of holos, SP-15718 revealed to Kamjin Lap'lamiz that during a mission, SP-15718 encountered and fought with Kamjin's son, who was on the opposing side. While SP-15718 had the opportunity to eliminate a major player on the opposite side. Not only did he refuse to eliminate Kamjin Lap'lamiz's son, he also saved him from a building that was about to be destroyed.

All in all, SP-15718 is a threat that should not be taken lightly. But for the threat he presents, he is also incredibly vulnerable. In the proper set of circumstances, those vulnerabilities could be exploited and would prove most useful in a conflict against Scholae Palatinae.

Forgive this added statement here. But it is an important addition that could not wait. Just before we were ready to send out the information, we found several combat reports and eyewitness statements that took place during the fighting on Dandoran. At first, it was found to be just an additional piece of information of SP-15718's combat experience, as he fought with the Revenants.

But as more information came to light about the conflict, we happened to find a report detailing the movements, locations and actions of each member of Scholae Palatinae during that conflict. And as it turns out, the Infamous Five; the ones who caused so much confusion, fear, and havoc on Dandoran, are members of Scholae Palatinae! This is quite astounding, and as such, we have included their true identities. Though, the identity of Old Wolf still eludes us. Here are the identities of the other four: 1: The Lady of Fear (SP-11405, or the former Empress Shadow Nighthunter), 2: Lady Darkshadow (SP-7370, or Rasilvenaira StormRaven), 3: The Smiling Rogue (SP-5101, or Thran Occasus-Palpatine), and 4: Doomwalker (SP-15718 or Xendar Thendaris). As you are aware, these five individuals caused the Principate massive losses in personnel, materials and morale.

And as you can see SP-15718 took a very active part in that war. And as Doomwalker, he caused a lot of embarrassment to the Principate forces with his actions in abducting troops and hijacking convoys! And not only that, apparently, according to those reports, SP-15718 is capable of using an old and nearly forgotten Force technique called Shatterpoint, which, according to some, can shatter and destroy Beskar. But, even more worryingly, SP-1718 can, and has used this technique before. During the fighting on Dandoran, he used it to shatter the crystals of the Ascended!
