Description: The Corrupted Terentatek is a huge, bipedal and spiny dreadful beast native to Kashyyyk. These beasts have spines on their heads and a pair of tusk-like horns that attached to the wide, tooth-filled mouth. Due to prolonged exposure to kyber crystals, their spines have mutated to include crystalline protrusions running down their spine and along the back. Their skin varies from dark brown to blue with yellow patches, but their eyes are known to be universally black. Their cruel demeanor and predatory nature makes them ferocious opponents and legends have been told of their ties to the Dark Side of the Force. They are the only known creatures whose corruption can taint a Solari crystal, turning it crimson, without severing its natural ties to the Force. The crystalline mutations have given the Terentatek a limited degree of Force Sensitivity, enhancing its senses and awareness with the Living Force.
