Description: Crystalline Gizka are a species of reptile that have been infused and enhanced by force sensitive crystals. Normal gizka are infamous for their prolific breeding rate and considered an annoying pest by many a spacer. The Crystalline Gizka lives up to its cousin species' reputation. These creatures are similar to the baseline gizka in appearance, being typically green or brown in coloration common to many reptiles, but its body has been plated and pierced by crystalline growths. More than the changes in physical appearance, the Crystalline Gizka is capable of expelling a bio hazardous gas from its gullet and body, allowing it to convert living beings into additional crystals. As a side effect, this removes any potential predators to the gizka, allowing them to breed in greater numbers and become a greater threat to other sentients. This makes what would normally exist as a mere annoyance to become a very real threat to any world where this invasive species might find itself.
