

Alethia Archenksova

(Phonetic: ah-LEE-thee-ah ar-CHENK-soh-vuh)

Councilor of Urr (since 36 ABY)

Alethia Archenksova took a dominant role in the new wave of Odanite leaders who rose to prominence during the Lotus War, taking Odan-Urr in a more militarized direction. After leaving the office of High Councillor in 37 ABY, her influence waned somewhat as Force-users came back into the fore.

Background and Training

Archenksova appears to have received extensive training from the Imperial Security Bureau, supplemented by Odan-Urr and years of conflict with the Sith and Collective. She has basic competence with blasters and has trained as a pilot. Her most extensive training is in close-quarters combat, unarmed or with a bladed weapon, likely because these situations present her with the least chance of avoiding personal combat. Her bladed weapon training focuses on lightsaber combat. Although she is unlikely to be a threat to a properly-trained Force-user, she is far from harmless with the weapon. Archenksova has a well-established reputation for grace and agility. Additionally, her personal willpower and her experience with mental manipulation through the Force likely renders her unusually resistant to such attempts.

Minions and Misdirection

Despite her training and personal capabilities, Archenksova has repeatedly criticized peers in command positions for personally endangering themselves in combat and is unlikely to be encountered without a significant guard. Given her relative insignificance in the current Odanite hierarchy, this guard is likely to consist of combat droids and her personal supporters. She has a well-deserved reputation for cunning and trickery, and will likely attempt to bluff her way out of unfavorable situations or lure our forces into traps. She has successfully used false surrenders as a tactic of war against the Collective; we recommend killing her on sight rather than attempting to subdue or capture her.

Power and Control

Although Archenksova has been out of power for several years, her reputation as an effective wartime leader remains intact. In the absence of Revak Kur and Aurora Ta'var, she will very likely attempt to rally Odanite forces under her direct authority, bypassing the leaders of the Guardian Corps and Consular Conclave. She is unlikely to be baited into launching a coup for personal advancement, however. She maintains extensive personal contacts with Arcona and the Severian Principate. If she judges Odan-Urr has fallen, she will likely retreat to one or both of those powers to organize a counterattack unless eliminated. Although neither power is likely to be a significant threat after this operation, Archenksova has extensive experience running a guerilla resistance movement and would likely remain a nuisance for years if allowed to escape.