Public records uncovered by allied intelligence have uncovered that "Bentre" hails from Corellia, though he was born as Bentyl. The second child of Garhas and Damasa Pryde Stahoes, much of his early history was uneventful. Parents appear in public records as deceased, as does the older sibling, Bentre Stahoes, who died several years beforehand.

He has publicly shown a desire for order, and a particularly cruel streak towards those who would act against his interests. In particular, he threatened clear harm to any members of the populace who rebelled against his self-proclaimed empire.

Skills / Abilities / Threats:

History since appearance as "Bentre Stahoes"

It appears that the Bentre Stahoes persona appeared in the Orian system sometime in 33 ABY. A small number of local conflicts appeared to involve Bentre Stahoes as a part of the Naga Sadow cult of the Brotherhood.

Since his rise to relative power over the last seven years, Bentre Stahoes has risen in prominence within the Orian system. Most significant in the time since assuming the Bentre moniker in Orian, the target has risen to the position of what could most closely be equated to a Chief of State.

As such, it is assumed he has access to weapons and forces that could make isolating the target difficult.

Affiliations and Fraternities

The most public affiliation of the target is with that of the Orian Empire, and his own proclaimed connection to the Naga Sadow cult. This cult group secretly controlled the Orian system for decades. Stahoes also possesses connections to the Dark Brotherhood and various facets of the organization.

Skill Sets

Stahoes has demonstrated an apt mastery of the Force. In particular, strength with regard to telekinetic and appearance-altering Force powers have been observed. The subject has not demonstrated many particular shows of might, but a few that have occurred have been of a significant potency.

Battlefield and security recordings have observed skillful application of at least one lightsaber combat style, computer manipulation skills, athletic feats, and deceptive personal representation. The subject appears to be subdued in response to typical stimuli, but has also been seen to exhibit signs of an underlying mania or mental impairment of some kind when faced with extreme stressors.

Stahoes also has public records that show a vested interest in ancient histories of Force User groups, mystical arts, and historical artifacts. The purchase of one artifact related to all three fields was traced back to Bently/Bentre as recently as 40 ABY. Details on the REFUGE incident will be attached to this file.

Threats / Concerns

Putting aside the sway that Stahoes appears to have over fellow members of his cult, combat capabilities and mania attributable to Bently/Bentre Stahoes make him a particular threat to Children of Mortis assets. Early elimination of this target could create a dip in Naga Sadowan morale, or even dissension within the ranks. Conversion is also an acceptable, and even desirable outcome.

Exercise extreme caution when approaching or attacking this target. If possible, use blasters or other ranged weapons, including ship weapons. By doing so, one might be able to overcome the abilities demonstrated by Bentre Stahoes and to remove him as an asset to be used by the Dark Brotherhood and those associated with said organization.
