

The Aliso West End Gentleperson's Club
Aliso City
Aliso

The Aliso West End Gentleperson's Club is situated at the edge of the financial district of Aliso City. The private club sees members from all over Aliso City's upper class, including several members from Clan Plagueis. The large complex features several amenities including a central smoke and drink area, several smaller conference rooms, and multiple ballrooms of various sizes that can host a variety of events.

The top 8 floors are separated as a hotel, with all the amenities expected from a five star hotel. The top floor is a suite for private use of the owner of the establishment; a secretive individual who is seen coming and going at various hours of the day. Renting a room at the hotel does not require a membership, but does require vouching from a platinum-tier member or higher. The grounds also include various club sporting events and a large pool in a lounge area.

Clan Plagueis still engages in the practice of slavery, however the club only employs free people and slaves are not allowed on the grounds of the club. One bodyservant or bodyguard is permitted to stay either in the servant's quarter or hotel rooms, but are not allowed in any common areas. The Servant's quarter also has some amenities that have a level of luxury.

There are also several areas deeper in the complex that house areas for those with a platinum membership, more credits, and less scruples.
