

Sith Fury Interceptor

- a. Name: Sith Fury Class Interceptor
- b. Category: [Interceptor]
- c. Proposed Shop: Celebration Store
- d. Proposed Rarity: Epic
- e. Item Description: The Fury-class were one of the deadliest small crafts in service to the Sith. Used by prominent Sith Warriors and Sith Inquisitors as their bases of operations. Designed to host up to fifteen personnel, the Interceptor is self sufficient to last lengthy operations without making port. Manufactured by the [Sith Empire], the Sith Fury Class is a 100-meter long [Interceptor]. Hyperdrive capable, the Fury is equipped with military grade armor and shielding. To withstand the rigors of combat operations, its arsenal can include quad-laser cannons, missiles or proton torpedoes. Additionally, the vessel is complemented with advanced WhisperThrust Engines, allowing for exceptional maneuverability and speed.

The Fury' s angular design combines the maneuverability of smaller Imperial fighters like the Interceptor with impressive armament that rivals some of the Empire' s larger military vessels. The Fury also features a newly designed set of 'strike foils' that remain down for travel but can be expanded in short range combat to maximize the ship' s agility and range of firepower. On the interior, adjustments have been made to match the luxury and aesthetics demanded of its proprietor. Advanced systems such as a cloaking device powered by rare Stygium crystals allow the ship to disappear from view and any pursuing ship's sensors. The ship has also been outfitted with an experimental tracking system allowing to track a ship's signature through hyperspace. Receiving command of a Sith Fury was considered an honor during the height of the Galactic Empire.

Justification: Sith Fury Interceptor

Wookieepedia Sith Fury-class Imperial interceptor

The Sith Fury [Interceptor] is one of the most versatile starships in the Sith Empire fleet. Though initially designed for high-priority military missions, the Fury became a favorite among Sith Lords and the latest models were engineered accordingly. With its impressive armament that rivals some of the Empire's other larger military vessels. The ship's capabilities easily transform it into an anti-strike fighter platform, eliminating multiple enemy fighters single handedly. The Fury's combination of sublight speed and maneuverability was comparable to most starfighters. Giving pause to those who face off against it. Then just as easily transition into a stealth reconnaissance platform to infiltrate enemy positions undetected.
