Description : The {{item_name}} is a device that can be used to inject an individual or creature with a serum designed to suspend biomechanical functions while maintaining complete cognitive capabilities. Developed by Republic scientists aboard the Covenant at the height of the Clone Wars, it was designed for use in a series of experimental medical procedures. The small disk-shaped device is applied directly to the patient's skin where a dispensing needle 4 millimeters long delivers the serum at the subcutaneous level. The dose can be increased or decreased to manage the duration of the effects which can last anywhere between minutes and hours. The effects are near instantaneous.
